Video Archives Now Online with our New You Tube Channel!

January 30, 2013

The American Martial Arts Institute is pleased to announce the official release of the school's digital video archives on You Tube and this website. In 1987, Grandmaster Crandall pioneered martial arts on television with the Martial Arts Today Show. As both the host and producer, he traveled to more than 22 countries interviewing martial artist in traditional and sport schools. He came to be known as a grassroots ambassador of the martial arts. The show aired on NBC affiliates throughout Central New York, New York City, and by satellite in Canada. It aired for over 12 years and reached more than 11 million homes. He conducted exclusive interviews with martial arts legends including Fumio Demura, Tadashi Yamashita, Ron Van Clief, Frank Dux, and many more. Until now, this footage has been in storage at the school's main location on 3/4-inch broadcast film. These shows have now been converted to DVD format and some of the classic interviews have been archived to our digital library hosted on You Tube. More than 8 hours of classic footage is now able to be shared with the world. In the future, these archives will grow with the edition of episodes of the safety and awareness today show, documentaries of school trips, media coverage, and more. This is now a living library giving students of the American Eagle Style and people around the world access to a part of our history. We hope you enjoy these segments and they contribute to your appreciation of the school and the martial arts as a whole.

ABOUT OUR ARCHIVES

The American Martial Arts Institute maintains a library at its main office with records of rank promotions, events, publications, media coverage, photographs, and videos. These are in the form of photo albums, copies of our publications, preserved news articles, and digital files such as videos and photographs from events in our history. In 1998, the American Martial Arts Institute launched its first website. Since then, the website has undergone many updates to keep up with changing technology.

Many of our school's events and history are recorded on this website; however, not all testing results are maintained online (although testing records are maintained at our school). Events prior to 1998, are kept at our school library. This webpage documents some of our school's history.
